2020 VISION

BY: Samantha Moore

the new year approaches, people everywhere are scrambling to decide what they want to achieve in 2020. They take this as the perfect opportunity to start making the changes they said they would six months ago, at the start of summer, but failed. At Woodlawn High School, there's a lot of talk about what each everyone's new year's resolution is going to be. Whether it be to improve their grades in the second semester or promise to get more involved in the activities that are going on in school, the conversation is everywhere. In all of this, there's one thing you don't hear about: the teachers' resolutions. Normally, it's the staff members asking their students about their intentions for the New Year. However, I recently sat down with a few staff members at Woodlawn High School and asked about their New Year's resolutions. Here's what I got:

Mrs. Sarah Morgan - "To lead a healthier life and make more time for myself."

Mrs. Michelle Montgomery - "To spend more time reading my Bible, exercise more, and improve eating habits. Also, make more time for my parents and extended family."

Mrs. Kelly Owens - "A renewed focus on health. Good health makes everything better."

Ms. Renea Rapp - "1. Finish my basement without a trip to the ER. 2. Quit stressing about the things I can't control (like the fact that I'm still not comfortable with some power tools.) 3. Appreciate the little, imperfect things in life."

Mr. Matt Smith - "I'd like to learn a new skill this year - maybe cooking!"

As you can tell, the teachers here at Woodlawn High School are striving to improve themselves in 2020. We wish them nothing but the best as they attempt to achieve these goals in the upcoming year!

SEEING INTO THE FUTURE

BY: Olivia Moser

you think about what you want your career to be, do you ever wonder what your day-to-day activities will be like, or what kind of environment you will be presented with? Woodlawn High School's College and Career students are extremely curious. On Wednesday, November 13, they were provided an opportunity, organized by the Chamber of Commerce, to job shadow a business that may interest that individual. Job shadowing is a great way to encourage the decision of choosing your career path. This day helped students really see the possibilities of future careers.

In advance of this trip, the students were to notify their teacher, Mrs. Leslie Witzel, of a career path they may be interested in. She presented this information to the Chamber of Commerce so they could arrange job shadowing visits to businesses they thought would interest each student. Local businesses participated such as the police station, Crossroads Hospital, Continental, Spero Family Services, as well as WGS' Kate Page and her t-shirt designing business.

Thanks to the Chamber of Commerce and Mrs. Witzel, some of our students were able to get some insight on what they may want their career to be. For some, this helped them decide that the career they've chosen is the right fit for them, and shows others they need to rethink their future career path. (At Right: Emily McMahon)
